SPEAKER GULLY AND GOVERNMENT LEADERS HARASSED.

Another Spirited Debate in the House of Commons on the Legislative Programme.

BY WILLIAM O'BRIEN

WHO SEVERELY CRITICISED METH-ODS OF THE CROWN IN IRELAND.

Reply by J. Atkinson, Who Denounced Mr. O'Brien for Cowardliness-Derisive Cheers and Hisses.

LONDON, Oct. 20 .- The Irish Nationalists were much in evidence at question time in the House of Commons to-day. They bombarded the Irish secretary, Mr. Wyndham, with all kinds of queries, interruptions and contradictions of his statements, anent the imprisonment of Irish members. Mr. Wyndham's replies, though given in a conciliatory tone, evoked storms of derisive cries, mingled with hisses, and the speaker was kept busy suppressing demonstrations which threatened to develop into disorderliness. William O'Brien moved the adjournment of the house in order to discuss questions arising from the case of former Police Sergeant Sullivan, now in America, who is alleged to have obtained the conviction of innocent persons through per-

The Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, cordially joined the Irish in supporting their demand that the government fix a day to discuss the status of Ireland, but he declined to make the Liberal opposition responsible for the demand, which, he said, was made by the constitutional representatives of Ireland, and in regard to a purely Irish question.

Premier Balfour retorted that Sir Henry's doctrine seemed wholly separatist. He would not admit that the government of Ireland was a purely Irish question and until the ambiguous attitude of the Liberal leader was cleared up he declined to say if the government would grant a day for the discussion of the state of Ireland. In outlining the Sullivan matter, Mr. O'Brien declared that Patrick Nolan, one of the government witnesses in a certain prosecution in Dublin and Sligo, although he swore at one trial that a letter purporting to have been written by Mr. MacHale, president of the United Revolutionary League, arranging for a murderous outrage, was in Sullivan's handwriting, yet afterward avowed that he had been emdiscrediting the evidence of other witnesses, and that Sullivan was guilty of forgeries. Describing the Sligo trial as an eyewitness, Mr. O'Brien declared that a more dishones or revolting trial had never been held. He said the Irish members feared that Dublin Castle was trying to hush the Sullivan matter up, but that it was a case of greater gravity than that of Sergeant Sheridan, because the plot Sullivan had organized against the Irish League was of the same character as the Pigott forgeries against Parnell. Mr. O'Brien chrged that "Very well," replied the court, "prove the government had packed the jury to acquit Sullivan and had then spent an enornous sum to shelter him from justice. "The greater the scoundrel in the Irish constabulary," said the speaker, "the surer he is of being shielded and promoted." The attorney general for Ireland, J. Atkinson, replying to Mr. O'Brien, charged that the facts of the case had been strangely misrepresented, and he taunted Mr. O'Brien with being too cowardly to bring this case openly in the law courts. A this statement there were shouts of "withdraw" from the Irish benches. Mr. O'Brien demanded to know whether the remark of Mr. Atkinson was disorderly. The speaker of the House, Mr. Cully, replied that he on Mrs. Adams's lips. Dr. Hitchcock did not take the remark as calling Mr. identified a piece of paper as the one that O'Brien a coward, but as applying to the course he had taken. The attorney general then withdrew his expression and proceeded with the contention that he did not

The arrange ment with the International Mercantile wrapped it around the package again. Marine Company, he added, did not involve any additional burden on the exchequer. When questioned on the subject of a British reverse in Somaliland, the foreign under secretary, Lord Cranborne, had little to add to the facts already known. He said General Manning arrived at Aden yesterday, and that the government placed at his disposal a battalion of Indian troops to aid the protective forces. If these two troops were not sufficient others would be forthcoming. Lord Cranborne said that Colonel Swain's retreat would probably necessitate much more prolonged operations and a larger force than anticipated. That the recent reports of Russia's desire to establish direct relations between St. Petersburg and Cabul, Afghanistan, were well founded, was admitted by the foreign under secretary. Replying to a question, Lord Cranborne said the British government had received a communication from the Russian government proposing that direct relations be established between Russia and Afghanistan in regard to frontier matters. Russia set forth that the relations would not have a political character, as the Russian government maintains its former engagements and continued to consider Afghanistan outside the sphere of Russian nfluence. The British government replied that it was impossible to consider any change in the existing arrangements without more precise information regarding the proposed relations, the limitations to be placed on them and the means for insuring the observation of such limitations. Lord Cranborne added that no answer had yet been received to Great Britain's reply. Replying in the House of Commons today to a member who asked whether be would take action with reference to the partments of St. Paul and did work on exclusion of soldiers in uniform from the portion of London theaters reserved for people in evening dress, War Secretary Brodrick replied that if the principle that uniform was equivalent to evening dress

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE JUDGE AD-VOCATE OF THE ARMY.

Death Sentences Imposed in Eight Cases, but Carried Out Only in Three-Military Trials.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.-The naval poard of construction to-day decided on the features of the armored cruisers authorized by the last Congress. Speed has been sacriced in a measure to power. By a vote of four against one Engineer-in-chief Melville's proposition to give the big ships 25,000 horse power and a speed of twentythree knots at a minimum was rejected, and the horse power will stand at twentythree, which he estimates will actually bring the speed down to twenty-one and a half knots. The new boats, therefore, will be three and a half knots slower than the four famous English armored cruisers of the Drake class. To offset this lack of speed the Tennessee class will have a much more powerful battery, namely, four ten-inch guns in two turrets, against two nine and a half-inch guns in the main batand a half inches, with six-inch side armor. The ships have been given so much power of offense and defense that the engineer-in-chief will make a minority report to Secretary Moody taking the ground that the intent of Congress has been evaded, and the board has designed actual battleships and not speedy armored cruis-

PUNISHMENT OF SOLDIERS.

Judge Advocate General's Report on Army Courts-Martial.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 .- The report of General George B. Davis, judge advocate general of the army, shows that during the year ended June 30 nineteen commissioned officers have been tried by courts-martial. Of these six have been acquitted. Two cases have been tried and convicted. The number of enlisted men convicted was 4,854, the sentences in 158 cases being disapproved, while 430 cases resulted in acquittal. The number of men sentenced to dishonorable discharge was 2,645. Death sentences were imposed by courts-martial in eight cases of enlisted men; four of these sentences being on conviction of murder, two on conviction of desertion and of entering the service of the enemy, one on conviction of desertion alone, and one on conviction of robbery and larceny of United States arms and of attempting to steal ammunition after desertion. The sentences were executed in three cases of murder and in the other cases were commuted to dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and imprisonment at hard labor for life, in four cases, and for the term of three years in the remaining case of desertion only. The records of military commissions show that 720 persons were tried, being 260 less than in the preceding years. Of this number 576 were convicted and 144 were acquitted. In fifty-five cases the sentences were disapproved. Death sentences were imposed by military commissions in about 235 cases (nearly all natives of the Philippine islands) on conviction of the more serious crimes named in the list, and the sentences were executed in about 128 cases. In the remaining cases the sentences were commuted to imprisonment for life or for a term of years.

country is increased.

President Roosevelt will receive, as he will deserve, great praise for the courage, persistency, tact and good nature with which he applied himself to a settlement of the coal strike. The happy ending crowns his work, and puts it beyond criticism in the popular judgment; but even if his patriotic efforts had failed, he would none the less have merited grateful recognition. It was against the advice of some of his to intervene in what threatened to be a national calamity. He frankly disclaimed legal warrant. It was simply as first citizen that he gallantly came forward in behalf of all citizens. And he steadily kept calm disregard of the hectoring tone of the operators in the lectures on his duty which hey delivered to him two weeks ago, was tent upon his goal than upon any quesbonds purchased by Secretary Shaw under | tion of personal pique.
